

CHRISTINA AGUILERA LAUNCHES 'ROYAL DESIRE' FRAGRANCE

Christina Aguilera is currently overseas promoting her new fragrance, 'Royal Desire.' The singer is celebrating the launch of 'Royal Desire' at the Upside East Lounge in Munich, Germany. Aguilera just wrapped the first season of 'The Voice' and has also been working on a music video with Maroon 5, so it is hard to imagine how she even found the time to create her own perfume!

The 'Moves Like Jagger' songstress posed for pictures during the event, and as always, she was looking very "va va voom." Her wavy, bleach blond locks fell to one side, and she strutted her stuff in a black, form-fitting mini-dress and sky-high platinum colored heels. Her fire engine red lips topped off the vixen's look.

Aguilera has said that her perfume is targeted for women who enjoy the finer things in life and have a craving to be in the spotlight (sounds a lot like Aguilera herself, doesn't it?). The scent contains hints of mandarin, marshmallow, blackberry, sandalwood and cedar — it will be interesting to see what that combination of smells will produce.
